
BIBLE TALK - A GUIDE FOR YOUR LIFE

Introduction

For an ice-breaker, pick two volunteers, preferably older kids, and have them take off their shoes. Using raw eggs, create two zigzagging lines. Ask both volunteers to navigate from one end of the line to the other without stepping on an egg, which they will be able to do easily. Next, let them know that they will have to do it blindfolded, and they need to listen to a specific person's voice to help them navigate across without crushing any eggs. However, everyone will be yelling directions at them at the same time. Without them knowing, remove the eggs from the floor before starting. After they walk across, remove their blindfolds and let them know that you had removed the eggs before hand.

How did you feel walking across blindfolded? Why was it important to you to listen to the guiding voice? In what ways did the other voices make your job that more difficult?

Let's learn about God's word as a guiding light for our lives.

Psalm 19:7-8, Psalm 119:105
